

May you one day look at all that you have gathered and see a vision emerge. May your accumulated good works become both the journey and the destination. May you return to you in friend-followers... in admirers all variations. And you find the deep gladness deep my hunger friends, are meant to dwell. May it be so.

